

Good news travels fast.

With the birth of mining in northeastern Ontario came a supply and services sector that served the local industry's needs. Today, the region is home to some of Canada's richest mines and SAMSSA, the Sudbury Area Mining Supply and Service Association. The sector now comprises 500 companies, producing more than $5 billion a year in goods and services for mining and industrial clients around the world. And that's good news for everyone.
